LESSON FOR AUGUST 17

CHRISTIAN MISSIONS.

LESSON TEXTS—Acts 1:8; 13:1; 14:23.
GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature.—Mark 16:15.
ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Matthew
28:19-20; Luke 24:46-48; Acts 26:12-20.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Helping everybody to know Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The whole world needs
Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—Taking the gospel to the whole world.
SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian missions; aims and results.

I. The Obligation of Missions (Mark 16:15).

God saves men for a purpose. That purpose is to be laborers together with him in the salvation of others. Christ's parting message, yea, his final commission to the disciples was, "Go, preach the Gospel to every creature." This obligation still rests upon the church. Since the command is to preach the Gospel to every creature, this obligation will obtain as long as there is one unreached soul.

II. The Power of Missions (Acts 1:8).

This power is the supernatural inducement of the Holy Spirit. Missionary endeavor without the Holy Spirit is doomed to failure. Power to witness for Christ is the purpose of the gift of the Spirit. Success will crown the efforts of those who go forth under the leadership and power of the Holy Spirit. The Spirit was not given primarily to make Christians happy, but to make them strong to carry the Gospel to the heathen. However, those who go forth in this blessed service in the Spirit's power are truly happy.

III. The Scope of Missionary Endeavor (Acts 1:8).

The disciples were to begin their witnessing where they were when the Holy Spirit fell upon them—Jerusalem. But they were to go out from there to the "uttermost parts of the earth." This is the program for every disciple of Christ. Begin witnessing where Christ saves you, and then go to your neighbors next to you, and on to the remotest bounds of the earth. There is no such thing as "home missions," except that you begin at home.

IV. The First Foreign Missionaries (Acts 13:1-14:28).

1. Who they were (13:2). Barnabas and Saul were selected—the very best two men in the church. The evangelization of the world is a task of such tremendous importance that it challenges the church to offer her best men and women. Since an institution is judged by its representatives, it becomes the church to put her most capable men to the front.

2. By whom sent (13:2, 4). The Holy Spirit chose these men and sent them forth to their work. The church at Antioch seemed to have deliberately planned this missionary enterprise. It was after prayer and fasting that the Spirit ordered the church to send forth these missionaries. It should be the business of the church to constantly seek the mind of God relative to sending forth laborers into the Lord's vineyard. The Spirit calls and sends men forth, but he does this through the church.

3. Some experiences of the first foreign missionaries:

(1) Withstood by Elymas the sorcerer (13:6-12). Elymas moved by the devil, sought to turn the mind of Sergius Paulus from the faith, thus barring the Gospel as it enters upon its widest mission of salvation. The most villainous act which one can commit is to turn a soul from the Gospel. (2). Worshiped as gods (14:8-18). (a) The occasion (vv. 8-10). God accompanied the testimony of these missionaries by his mighty power. He wrought a miracle through Paul. At his call the inveterate cripple—one who had never walked—leaped up and walked. The cure was instant. (b) The method (vv. 11-13). They called Barnabas, Juniter, and Paul, Mercury, because he was the chief speaker. They declared that the gods had come down in the likeness of men, and they brought oxen and garlands to offer sacrifice. (c) Their efforts failed (vv. 14-18). 1. The missionaries rent their clothes and ran in among the people, saying they were not divine but beings of like passions with themselves. 2. They urged the people to turn to God. 3. Paul stoned (vv. 19-22). Stirred up by wicked Jews from Antioch and Iconium, the rabble who a moment ago were worshipping as gods with satanic hate. Doubtless Paul remembered Stephen's experience. God raised him up and he went forth to discharge his duties as a missionary. Such men of courage are needed today.

Without Loyalty to Christ.
A Christianity without loyalty to the Christ, as its motive and inspiration, may be likened to—well, may we say, our solar system minus the sun.

An Inward Beauty.

There is an inward beauty, life, and loveliness in divine truth, which cannot be known but when it is digested into life and practice.—John Smith.

Take heed of the first stumble, for it is ominous; and at best there is a good step lost.—Benjamin Whichcote.

PLAN OF GRAZING FOR GOATS

Give Vegetation Opportunity to Grow by Dividing Range on Which Animals Forage.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The production of more mohair and meat can be obtained in raising goats on the range by following a plan of grazing which will give the vegetation a chance to grow sufficiently to maintain itself. Most goat ranges are used throughout the year. This and the general practice of driving the goats out from a corral at the ranch headquarters and back every day for months or throughout the year have been largely responsible for deterioration of the range. An excellent method of giving the forage a proper opportunity for growth is to divide the range into three areas—one for spring, another for summer and fall, and a third for winter.

The number and distribution of the goats on these divisions should be such as to secure proper and uniform utilization of the forage. The divisions should be protected from grazing except during the seasons determined upon. On successive parts of the summer and fall range grazing should be deferred until after seed maturity of the forage plants so as to insure proper revegetation. On winter range the forage close to the sheds should be reserved for stormy periods only.

The old practice of bedding the goats on the same bed ground every night in the year prevents proper management of the range and results in overgrazing, in uneven utilization of the forage and general depreciation of the range. This in turn has a bad effect on the condition of goats and the production of meat and mohair. The use of many bed grounds widely distributed over the range aids materially in improving the quality and quantity of the forage, reducing the trailing and driving of the goats, and securing better growth of goats and mohair. The ideal system is to bed the goats wherever night overtakes them, and it is this system, called the "bedding-out" system, that growers of goats are urged to adopt whatever practicable.

The bedding-out system cannot be strictly adhered to during kidding, during periods of stormy winter weather, nor just after shearing; but its use at other times is practicable and it has many advantages.

Range to be suitable for goats should possess a mixture of browse, grasses, and weeds, be free from continued heavy rains and snows, and be well supplied with bed grounds and watering places. Browse furnishes most of the range feed for goats throughout the year, so that it should be abundant. Grass and weeds are necessary for does and kids during the spring and summer, and are of considerable value at all times to give variety to the forage.

Plenty of fresh palatable feed has a marked beneficial effect on mohair production, growth of the goats, and the proportion of kids raised. It also reduces the proportion of losses. Therefore, instead of overstocking a range with inferior goats, the producer should stock it with the number of high-grade goats which it can conservatively carry.

The range goat should be the large, well-built, early maturing Angora, producing a large quantity of fine mohair. The body and chest should be relatively broad and deep, the back wide and straight, the thighs full, the ribs well sprung, and the legs short, strong, and set wide apart. Such Angoras make possible a substantial revenue from two sources—mohair and meat.

The does should be uniform, of good size, have good constitutions, be good producers of mohair, and should produce sufficient milk to insure proper growth of their kids. The bucks should more nearly approximate the ideal than the does. They should be large and vigorous and should produce a large quantity of high-quality mohair. Only those wethers which produce a very large quantity of fine mohair should be retained in the herd after they are two years old.

Most Popular Hog.

The butcher hog, weighing between 200 and 250 pounds is the most popular with the packing companies because it furnishes everything that is desirable in meat, and consequently will command a higher price.

IMPROVING THE PASTURE

When and How This Can Be Done for the Best Results.

Use Barnyard Manure to Good Advantage.

High Grade Pasturage Provides More Feeding Capacity and Bigger Dividends in Milk Yields.

When farm work slackens in the Fall after the corn has been husked and the crops harvested, the farmer will do well to apply lime to the pasture. The pasture problem is becoming more acute everywhere each year. The good palatable grasses are disappearing largely because the soil has become sour, and weeds; tough inferior grasses, and in many cases, moss, are taking their place. Many pastures will not maintain one-half as many animals as they did a few years ago. Observation shows that it requires more acres to maintain a cow nowadays, than it did years ago when more careful attention was given to the quality of pasturage.

Pastures seemed to be considered sort of a God given asset to the farm. They are much neglected in spite of the fact that grasses and clovers respond well to good treatment—especially to lime. One way or another pastures cost the farmer because upkeep of fences is necessary and interest on investment is continuous. They will not pay dividends without care.

There are three or four things necessary in pasture improvement. First in importance, on most of the areas, is an application of lime. Fortunately for the farmer, lime may be applied to the pasture at any time in the year. There is no best time. The point is to get it on the land. The most convenient time is undoubtedly in Fall when farm work has eased up. At this time lime may be carted and spread with little difficulty, especially the hydrated lime which comes in bags and needs no slaking. Generally roads are also good in the Fall for hauling. A ton of lime to the acre is none too much, because in most cases the soil has become very sour during a period of many years of heavy grazing, and no treatment other than the droppings of the animals which are never sufficient in themselves. Very finely pulverized lime is especially valuable because it is so readily soluble and begins to correct acidity as soon as it is applied. If applied in the Fall, its action by Spring will have been sufficient to create favorable conditions for the growth of the old plants or for the growth of new plants springing from seed.

There must be sufficient plant food in the soil. To supply it, either barnyard manure or commercial fertilizers may be used. It is true that where manure is used, it will keep the animals away for a time, but that is an advantage in one way at least, in that it will give the grass an opportunity to make a start.

It will be beneficial to work up the soil with a sharp-toothed harrow to mix the applied material and prepare a better soil bed for the grass seed that should be applied. Spring seeding is usually best. Where the land is too steep to harrow, the seed should be applied when the soil is honeycombed by frost. It is important that strong, vital seeds, free of impurities are used, and they should be of kinds which will guarantee a succession of pasturage. Fifteen to twenty pounds is a generous application. For most conditions from Maine to Virginia, where lime has been used, the following mixture will prove satisfactory:

Timothy, 10 pounds; Kentucky blue grass, 6; Orchard grass, 4; Meadow Fescue, 2; Italian rye grass, 1; Red clover, 6; Alsike clover, 4.

Many farmers are already using this mixture. Some add a pound each of white clover, alfalfa, and sweet clover. If the ground is very dry, smooth brome grass should be substituted in the mixture for an equivalent amount of orchard grass and timothy.

After this treatment has been given the pasture should not be overstocked, nor pastured too early in Spring or too late in Fall, because the plants must have some opportunity to make enough growth so that they will have vitality to live through the winter. And, once this treatment has been given to a pasture and enough lime applied to correct at least a part of the acidity, it should be repeated from time to time to maintain it in good condition. The application of manure, seed and lime should be repeated every five years, especially the application of lime.

THE SUMMER FALLOW.

The effect of summer fallowing upon the conservation of moisture alone is worth the trouble and expense. Often alfalfa planting comes when it is very dry. It must have moisture, and it is well to conserve the moisture of the preceding six weeks, not only because the plants need it, but because it is needed in the soil processes which change dormant forms of plant food to active. These processes are greatest during July and August, when the weather is warm and summer fallowing promotes conditions favorable to them. In this connection the constant working of the soil helps to incorporate lime, fertilizer, inoculating material and organic matter with the soil and secure an even distribution of all.

Effects of a Rats Diet.

The wheat-eating Carthaginians were no match for the pork-eating Romans;
the goat-eating Greeks easily overcame the herbivorous Persians, while the beef-eaters of England have often proved their bravery. Yet the British army contains no better soldiers than the Scottish and Irish, to whom meat was long a luxury.

Words From Home

Statements That May Be Investigated Testimony of Bedford Citizens

When a Bedford Citizen comes to the front, telling his friends and neighbors of his experience you can rely on his sincerity. The statements of people residing in far away places do not command your confidence. Home endorsement is the kind that backs Doan's Kidney Pills. Such testimony is convincing. Investigation proves it true. Below is a statement of a Bedford resident. No stronger proof of merit can be had.

W. H. Weyant, W. Pitt St. Bedford says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are not a new remedy to me for I have used them off and on for a number of years, and would not be without them in the house. I have to be on my feet a great deal and also have a lot of heavy lifting to do. Often this has brought on backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble. A few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills always drives the attacks away and I value this medicine highly."

(Statement given October 14, 1907)

On February 10, 1919, Mr. Weyant added: "I am still using Doan's Kidney Pills and think as highly of them now as when I first recommended them."

LESS HOG-CHOLERA LOSSES

In 1918 Death Rate of Swine From Disease Was Placed at 42.1
Per Thousand.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Since 1913, when the United States department of agriculture began work to control hog cholera, the dreaded disease has become less and less destructive each year. A force averaging 165 federal veterinarians has been maintained, working in co-operation with state authorities in charge of quarantine and other regulatory measures necessary for the success of control work. During the fiscal year 1918 more than 5,500,000 hogs were inoculated with hog-cholera serum, and more than 2,200 farms, found to be infected

There is No Profit in Unhealthy Hogs
—Animals Kept Under Clean Conditions, as on Good Pasture, Are Better Able to Resist Cholera and Other Diseases.

with cholera, were cleaned and disinfected under supervision of the department veterinarians.

Altogether, representatives of the department visited more than 15,000 farms to investigate reported outbreaks, to apply preventive measures and to clean and disinfect premises.
How great a menace hog cholera has been to the nation's swine industry may be judged from the accepted estimate that 90 per cent of hogs lost from all ailments die from cholera. In 1918 the death rate of swine from disease was placed at 42.1 per 1,000. Thus the loss was slightly above 4 per cent for the United States, the lowest on record, according to the department's figures.

HOG RAISING IN THE SOUTH

Many Southern Farmers Growing
More Animals and of Larger Type —Noticeable in Georgia.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

An important result of hog-cholera control work which has resulted in a steady decline of the disease, has been the stimulus given the development of swine raising in the South.
With other activities of the department in this line, the assurance given to Southern farmers that hogs can be produced without fear of losses from cholera has encouraged growing not only larger numbers of animals but also better types. This has been noticeable particularly in Georgia. A few years ago that state purchased about 40,000,000 pounds of pork more than it produced annually. But efforts for the control of hog cholera have gradually extended over the entire state, with resulting confidence in hog raising. By 1918 Georgia was producing pork enough to make shipments to outside points besides supplying a large number of hogs to local slaughtering establishments. Similar progress has been made in Mississippi, Alabama and Florida.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

There should be more calves on farms.

A satisfied cow is probably a satisfactory cow.

More cows should be kept on the average farm.

Cows without salt lose flesh and finally break down.

Comfort is as essential to a cow as to any other worker.

When buying a grade cow it pays to select one from a pure-bred bull.

A number of calves die every year on account of the disease known as scours.

In stormy weather, when mud is too frequent, the cows will take a great deal of scrubbing.

One hundred tons of silage will feed 25 cows 40 pounds of silage a day for 200 days.

Any man who keeps ten head or more cattle will find a silo an economic equipment on his farm.

Diamonds Raised Their Own Mileage Adjustment to

Fabrics - 6,000 Miles
Cords - 8,000 Miles

Diamond Tires kept on giving such masterly service—kept it up with such unwavering consistency—that they automatically lifted themselves out of the old adjustment class.

Think of it—formerly on Fabrics
the adjustment was 3,500 miles—
now 6,000 miles; on Cords, 5,000 miles—now 8,000 miles.

If a good tire which was the favorite of hundreds of thousands of car owners, proved itself so much better that we can safely—very safely —raise the adjustment bases more than 40%, it is a sure-mileage tire for you to use.

Now is the time to put on Diamonds all 'round.

The new adjustment bases also apply on all Diamonds now in use or in the hands of dealers.

POLITICAL PARTIES, PETITIONS, ELECTIONS ETC.

The political parties which will nominate their candidates at the coming primary election to be held Tuesday, September 16, 1919 and white general election will be held on Tuesday, November 4, 1919 are

REPUBLICAN DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST
PROHIBITION

The first day for securing signatures to petitions to file with the Commonwealth at Harrisburg is Monday, June 30, 1919 and the last day to file these petitions at Harrisburg is Friday August 8th 1919. One office in Bedford county must be certified to the State, that of Associate Judge. Judge Anthony Sammell's term expires.

The first day to secure signatures for county, township and borough offices is Friday, July 11, 1919 and the last day to file these petitions, with the County Commissioner's is Wednesday August 20, 1919. All township offices expire this year and all county offices except one Poor Director and the Jury Commissioners.

The last days to be assessed in boroughs and townships for November election are Tuesday and Wednesday September 2 and 3, 1919. Assessors must sit at the polling places on these days.

The last day to pay tax to qualify for November Election is Saturday October 4, 1919.

All voters must declare their party affiliations to vote a party ballot but do not need to declare for voting a non-partisan ballot. This applies only to the Primary.

Republicans hoped to find inquiries into the conduct of the war less disagreeable to friendly special interests than investigations into the high cost of living.

Perhaps Speaker Gillett doesn't want the House of Representatives to permit the high cost of living to be investigated without "reservations."

When Republicans begin to quarrel among themselves we can expect to hear the truth even if we can't hope to have constructive legislation.

Probably that Republican effort to adjourn the House of Representatives for five weeks was intended as a "strategic retreat."

After the next election Republicans in Congress may experience the high cost of living down their record of legislative failure.

If there was a luxury tax on language Republican attacks on the League of Nations might be somewhat profitable.

There is a big quarrel among Republicans as to the best way to avoid doing their duty.

The Republicans promised us last autumn that their election would result in lower taxes. Now comes Mr. Fordney with a proposal for a high protective tariff. A general high tariff is a high tax.

Speaker Gillett apparently believes that by refusing to recognize Democrats who have something to propose for the good of the country he can ignore all that means trouble for the Republicans.

Republicans wanted to take a recess because it was too warm in Washington. But the people will make it still hotter for the G. O. P. if its representatives in Congress don't get busy.

Republican "investigations" are revealing some startling differences between the conduct of the Spanish-American war on a ration of "embalmed" beef and the winning of the world's greatest conflict on whole-some food.

of solid achievement. The gab-dis-ease is attacking every member of our national organization. The thousands of muckrakers infesting the country are the direct product of our legal system. Millions of dollars are annually spent on fruitless argument, as it is getting to be the fashion to beat about the bush instead of going straight to the heart of the matter. Our system of Law is so voluminous and self-contradictory that equity is already counted among the lost arts. It is so difficult to get justice nowadays that it generally appears to be better paying and more satisfying to drop one's case before it commences. The letter of the law is mercilessly murdering the spirit; and the poor man is always at a disadvantage. It is high time to hear the voice of another Roosevelt thundering for the revision and simplification of the American system of government.

2. Extreme individualism. The individual is the creation of Christianity. Christ brought out the great value of the individual soul. But, knowing the human nature, our Lord gave principles that would control individuality. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even so do ye also unto them." Yet, "personal liberty gone amuck" has taken the place of Christianity; and this is responsible for most all of capital and labor troubles. "The land of the free" the average man takes to mean, the land where the individual can live as he pleases, and do as he chooses with himself and his property. The letter of the Law encourages the idea, thus placing both labor and capital at a marked disadvantage. The laborer is apparently assured he has a right to be out for all he can get; but is condemned in the effort. On the other hand, the capitalist is told he is free to make use of his money and other possessions as he sees fit, but is sharply censured when he carries the theory of his rights into practice. It is time we introduce the spirit of Christianity into our laws, and plainly tell the individual that whatever he holds in "possession" of property or personal talent is not really his "own", but simply a trust. It just as much belongs to his neighbor as to himself. Neither is he free to do with it as he pleases. The genius, the leader, the man of influence and ability is an agent, a trustee, and is to make an account for what has been delivered into his hands.

Such legislation would do away with a great deal of egotism and irresponsibility. It would, in like manner, impose a new and somewhat different obligation on the government. At present, the government is only to watch and do the policing duties. She waits until a criminal breaks the law; then she catches him, shakes him, punishes and tortures him. Whereas, according to the new Christian idea, it would become the government's duty to help and redeem people, to instruct, develop and make positive and beneficial use of all classes of people. The government should never be indifferent as to any phase of the welfare of the people. She must take the initiative in all matters pertaining to human progress and happiness, and train the individual to surrender his personal liberty where such a surrender is right and for the best interests of his fellowmen as well as his own. Through intelligent and voluntary cooperation the government can create a new society.

This spirit would likewise put a stop to profiteering. Morally speaking, our business system is composed of anarchy, lawlessness, and disorder. "Purchase at the lowest prices, and sell at the highest prices." "Business is business." All such rubbish must go. Our business organism needs a "conscience." Big merchants of business ability without conscience should not be allowed to prey upon society and the poor man. A "moral certificate" should be considered in business circles just as important as a "college diploma" in educational circles, and the government should see to it that I consider the spirit of Hon. John Wana-maker's "Birthday Progressive Program" and his business in general as exemplary in putting the Spirit of Christ into business. The government should encourage it.

3. The Race Problem.—We have some ten to fifteen million negroes in America who are our fellow-citizens, and as such have as much right to enjoy the blessings of freedom as the people of Shantung or any other country. But, as a matter of fact, do they? As I see a bright colored boy on the street, I say to myself, What prospect, what future, what progress? None whatever! Living under the flag: dying for the flag: as brave and patriotic as any. Yet, what social or political rights are theirs? None whatever! If we have sacrificed 2,000,000 lives for their liberation, we should at least be willing to remove all restrictions from their way and hail them as full-fledged American citizens, or get them out of the country altogether, if we can, and if it is right. The race problem should be justly solved according to the principle of Christian Americanism. And the government must, to a great extent, take the lead in this grave matter.

I say, the government should do all of that; but without ideals the government can do nothing. The right idea of "Right" is an absolute necessity for true progress. So, behind the government stand the church and the Christian people. More than that, the government should be made up of true Christian people. It is the mission of the church to teach, preach, and practice, with the aim of instilling the spirit of Christ into all persons and all things. Are you not proud to know that the Presbyterian church is now in conference to draw up a 'working system' that would help stamp out Bolshevism? The same church took the lead in the prohibition movement, and has always been fighting for liberty. Other churches are doing great things for God and humanity. What a great step of reform it would be if all the churches should get together in a general conference and cooperatively devise plans and methods whereby they promise to help the government in effecting measures of reform; for, the only hope of the world for salvation and civilization is "the Spirit of Jesus Christ" which He left in His Church. Do your part, good friends, and help bring about the Kingdom of God on earth in full power! And to God be the glory forever! Amen.

This sermon has been printed in pamphlet form for free distribution. Just ask for it.

President Wilson's League of Nations fails to please some score of Republican Senators. But it may be asked whether Mr. Lodge's league would suit Mr. Nelson, or whether anybody's league would satisfy Mr. Borah?

Republican leaders of Congress have pretended that they were preparing a program of legislation upon domestic issues. There is now a fine opportunity to act. The President and the people have outlined a program.

Drastic "Dry" Bill Passed By House Goes To Senate

By a vote of nearly three to one, the House of Representatives passed the prohibition enforcement bill and sent it to the Senate. The bill had been the center of stormy for several weeks. The "wets" stood firm to the last and tried to recommit the bill, this having failed a roll call was taken and the measure passed by 287 to 100 yeas.

The principal provisions of the bill are: Liquor in possession of druggists, chemists and physicians must be reported; liquor is defined as intoxicating which contains more than one half per cent alcohol; no person allowed to make, sell, barter, give away, import or export liquor; liquor advertisements forbidden; and sale manufacture or distribution of compounds intended for use in unlawful manufacture of liquor together with sale or publication of receipts for home manufacture. Heavy penalties are provided for violations of the bill.

Gillett, The New Czar

Republican leaders in Congress, though their memories appear to be rather short, ought not to assume that the people have forgot the despotic and reactionary tactics which they punished eight years ago by driving Cannon and Aldrich and their retinue from power. Czarism is less popular now than it was in 1912.

Speaker Gillett seems to have learned little from the history of the last decade. He is turning back to the practices, as his party also is reverting to the standards, of an age that is gone. The Democrats gave the people a full share in the government, and there will be no tolerance for the cabal or individual that attempts to substitute the sway of a person or of a group for popular rule.

Whether Mr. Gillett's ruthless denial of former Speaker Clark's right to be heard in behalf of the country was prompted by pique at the wrecking of plans for adjournment of the House of Representatives, or whether it was inspired by the hope of preventing an inquiry into the cost of living is immaterial. It was bad taste and poor policy. It was a resurgence of all that began by defeating the popular will and ended by overthrowing the Republican machine only a little time since.

In Matrimony, to hesitate is sometimes to be saved.

I imagine that life can give nothing much better or much worse than I have myself experienced.

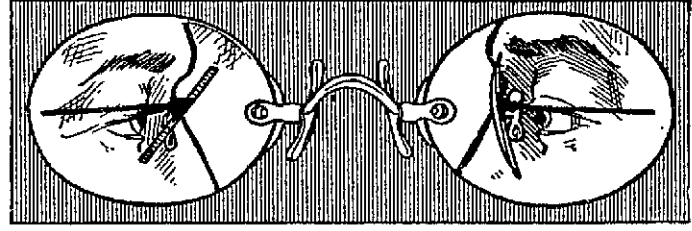

At least one-half of the misery which meets us daily might be removed or, at any rate greatly alleviated, if those who suffer by it would think it worth their while to be at any pains to get rid of it.

Now All You Good Fellows, Come Fill Up Your Pipes

15c

The Velvet tin is twice as big as shown here

If ever men are "Tom" and "Bill" to each other, it's when good pipes are a-going. If ever good pipes go their best, 'tis when Velvet's in the bowl.

For Velvet is a mighty friendly smoke. Kentucky Burley is the leaf that Nature made for pipes. Wholesome and hearty, honest as the day. And Velvet is that same good Burley leaf, brought to mellow middle age.

For eight long seasons Velvet "meditates" in wooden hogsheads, throwing off the rawness of "young" tobacco—truly "ageing in the wood." Out Velvet comes—cool, calm and generous—the tobacco Nature made good, kept good and made better.

Velvet's sweetness is the sweetness of good tobacco, not "put on" like "frosting" on a cake. Its mildness comes from natural ageing, not from having the life baked out. Its fragrance is true tobacco fragrance, not a perfume. And Velvet makes an A Number One cigarette. Roll one.

As good old Velvet Joe says:

"Fill yo' heart with friendly thoughts,
Yo' mouth with friendly smoke—
An' let the old world wag."

Twenty dollars a pair for shoes will compel those who dance to pay the cobbler as well as the fiddler.

Inquiry Reveals Excessive Shoe Profits

The high price of shoes was declared to be due to excessive profits taken by every factor in the shoe production agency according to a report of the Federal Trade Commission, recently made public. The packers were charged with having begun the pyramiding of shoe prices by an unwarranted increase in the price of hides, the supply of which they are said to control. On top of this increase it was charged that the tanners have taken "exceptional profits" while the shoe manufacturers have demanded an "unusual margin" and the retailers have charged prices that are "not justifiable."

Flour at $10 a barrel sounds good to the housekeepers.

Caponizing

The capon is to the poultry dealer what the fat steer is to the beef-packer—the source of the choicest food product of its kind. As a result of the contented disposition, the capon develops more uniformly than the cockerel and grows larger than a cockerel of the same age. Coupled with this larger and better growth the capon commands a better price per pound, and the demand continues good notwithstanding the fact that more and more are raised each year.

This booklet which is issued by the Bureau of Animal Industry contains directions for making, feeding and marketing capons with details concerning methods and results. Readers of the Gazette may obtain a copy of this booklet free by addressing a postal card to the Division of Publications, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Ask for F. B. 849.

G. O. P. CONGRESS FAILS ON VITAL PROBLEMS

By their vote to adjourn for five weeks, Republican leaders of the House of Representatives have called the country's attention to the failure of Congress to legislate upon any of the vital problems which President Wilson recommended for action in his message last May—including his proposal for a new labor program leading to genuine co-operation and partnership based on a community of interest and participation in the control of industry.

On the very eve of the recess which they contemplated, Republican leaders emphasized their unwillingness or their inability to respond to popular demands and necessities by blocking a resolution introduced by Representative Igno Democrat to authorize an investigation into the high cost of living. Speaker Gillett and Floor Leader Mondell acted in concert to prevent the adoption of the resolution.

President Wilson's letters to Speaker Gillett, Majority Leader Mondell and Chairman Esch of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce urging them to continue the sessions of the House that action might be taken with respect to the railroads and the high cost of living brought them to grudging compliance coupled with criticism. The recess of five weeks was abandoned, but instead the House was adjourned for three days, during which the inquiry suggested by Representative Igoe was delayed.

Hadn't Earned a Vacation

When the Republicans voted to take their "vacation" the kind and extent of the labors by which the House of Representatives had earned the right to rest at once became the subject of inquiry. There was a general call for an accounting. It became plain that practically the only bills which had been passed were those which could have been passed in last session of Congress and would have been enacted but for the Republican filibuster in the Senate last March. The public harked back to President Wilson's message. It was found that none of his recommendations had been embodied in legislation. The needs and the opportunity presented to the Republicans in this message were great indeed, but the majority in Congress has done nothing to translate them in to law. Here are the salient proposals addressed by President Wilson to a majority which had been clamoring for an extra session and a chance to begin "reconstruction."

A new labor program contemplating genuine co-operation and partnership based on a community of interest in industry and participation in control.

Legislation for the solution of the railroad problem.

Revision of war taxation, particularly the abolition of manufacturers' and retailers' excises—the so called luxury taxes—affecting clothing, personal equipment and similar items.

Supplying the tariff laws with "teeth" to protect American industry against foreign attack.

Enactments to facilitate American enterprise through the expansion of shipping.

Tariff changes to protect special new industries brought into being by the war—such as the dyestuffs industry.

Reductions in war time excess profits taxes and the simplification of tax collection regulations.

A policy designed to insure the successful operation of many strong and well equipped chemical plants fostered during the war.

The realization of Secretary Lane's plans for providing work and lands for returned soldiers.

Things Undone.

All these recommendations constitute a catalogue of things which the Republican majority could have done and should have done, but has not done, in the extra session.

Speaker Gillett, in an interview on April 8, last said it was an outrage that Congress, was not then in session to adjust the railroad and shipping situations. Senator Penrose, "boss" of the Senate, on May 10, announced as his program the immediate repeal of the "luxury taxes" the establishment of a budget system, the simplification of tax laws, etc.

President Wilson furnished to the Republican leaders the occasion and opportunity when he submitted his message to Congress in May. But after a little more than two months the Republican leaders of one branch of Congress voted a recess from the work of avoiding action. The President has given them another chance by recalling them into session.

The Legacy

By S. B. HACKLEY

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure News-Paper Syndicate.)

The maid brought in the evening's mail, a single letter, on a silver tray. Old Hester Anne Wallace read the letter twice over, then laid her glistening white head wearily back on her pillow. After a half-hour's perplexed thought she rang the bell.

"Telephone Richard Benton to come to me," she bade the girl, "immediately!"

In fewer than thirty minutes the brisk little lawyer appeared. Mrs. Wallace spread the letter before him. "Aunt Hester Dear," it read, "I will not be married to Francis Arledge in October, or at all, ever. He—I broke the engagement finally a month ago. I trust you will not be displeased. Your affectionate niece,

"RUTH LOREN."

The childless old lady had been happy when the favorites of her rugged old heart had come blithely to her, four months before, to tell her of their engagement.

The girl had clung to her with shining eyes when she had asked her when the marriage was to be.

"In October, if Francis can be ready for me!"

"And I will be ready then if putting the best that's in me in the business counts for anything!" Francis had said. "Oh, yes, Aunt Hester, I'll be ready."

"I had set my heart on Mary McAllister's girl marrying my girl," the old lady told her lawyer, "but the silly things have quarreled. They are both stubborn, and if something isn't done they'll never willingly see each other again, that's certain. I thought at first I'd tell her what I meant to do before I sent for you, then I remembered Doctor Baird's tale that this heart of mine is likely to quit work at any time."

"You remember how that will you wrote for me reads, of course. One-fifth of my property to be divided among my nephews, Mortimer, Harvey, Burrus and Otwell Hammel, and four-fifths to go to my niece, Ruth Loren."

"I wish to you rewrite that will, so that Ruth's share of my property will come to her conditionally. I desire her marriage to Francis Arledge of Langdon, Va., to take place not later than six months from this date. If she has not married Mr. Arledge by October 13 then I wish my four nephews to be the sole heirs to my entire estate."

When the lawyer had revised the will, two of the servants witnessing it, the old lady bade them a smiling good-night.

When her maid went to awaken her next morning the stern lines of the old face were softened into a wonderful gentleness. "Aunt Hester's" heart had "stopped work" forever.

"I killed Aunt Hester!" Ruth sobbed. "I wrote her Francis and I had broken our engagement, and the worry killed her. I know it did! Oh, auntie, auntie!"

Pallid in her mourning garments, with the going of summer Ruth drooped like a storm-beaten lily.

"She may be a grievin' for old Hester some," was her cousin's inward comment, "but it's not all grief for that cranky old woman that's makin' her lose all interest in life!"

"You ought to make up with that Francis Arledge, Ruthie, like your aunt wanted you to, and get that money," she said to the girl for the hundredth time one day in the early autumn. "You've got enough, to live on your father left you, but you'd just as well have more. To think of all that money going to those four Hammel brothers and every one of 'em well to do and not needin' it at all!"

Ruth's bloodless face crimsoned. "I—I couldn't make up with Francis Arledge just for the sake of money!" she faltered, "and he—he'd die first!"

In spite of Ruth's demurs the next week found her in the little town among the hills where for two weeks the fox hunters of the state were to hold high carnival.

Evelyn Forsyth gave her a glad welcome.

"I've got Beatrice Cline—she's from Louisiana, Ruth—the sweetest, prettiest thing you ever saw—staying with me, and Kenneth Marion and Junius Craft, from Knoxville—you know them—and Mildred Lee, and Nilan Omer, from Maryland, and—Francis Arledge!" she added a little uneasily.

At dinner that evening Ruth, led out to the dining room by the handsome Marylander, Nilan Omer, held her brown head high and her soft laugh rang out.

Omer, fascinated, never took his black eyes from her animated face. And Francis Arledge sat out the evening hours with Beatrice Cline, evidently a willing captive to the lovely Louisianan's languorous charm.

And each day, in the runs with the hounds, his black horse kept close beside Beatrice's bay. The young Marylander rode with Ruth Loren.

"Arledge is up to his eyes in love with Miss Louisiana, Junius!" Kenneth Marion remarked at the end of the week. Craft laughed. "Sure, he's not giving me any show!"

"And that Maryland fellow keeps everybody else away from the little Loren!" Marion went on regretfully.

It was the end of the second week, and the last run and a long one into the more rugged country around the little town. About ten o'clock Ruth Loren, her cheeks crimson in the crisp air, found herself standing alone at the foot of a low brush-topped cliff, while Nilan Omer had ridden back the road a quarter of a mile to search for an important notebook that had slipped from his pocket.

Suddenly above her she heard a running horse's hoofs slip, and a big black horse crashed over the cliff not a dozen feet from her.

He made no effort to rise, but his rider wrenched himself free of him, then fell over by him.

Ruth sprang from her saddle and ran to the fallen man. In an agony she thrust her fingers under the folds of his hunting shirt. He opened his eyes and raised himself on his elbow.

"It's my ankle, Ruth," he said, "broken, I think, the way it pains. Poor old Nigel!" He looked at the prostrate horse. "It's all up with him." Ruth sobbed aloud. "Oh, Francis, I thought you were dead!"

His damp fingers held hers tight. "My heart is!" The words came slowly. "It's been dead for more than six months!"

"But Beatrice Cline!" she cried.

"I—Miss Cline—there's nothing—" he managed to say. "I thought you knew there was never anybody—for me—but—you, Ruthie! Nilan Omer—"

She made an impatient gesture. "Why didn't you come back, Francis, long ago?"

"I was afraid you'd think—I wanted to profit—by your inheritance," he confessed. "Why didn't you come to me, sweetheart?"

"I couldn't!" she cried. "Wouldn't you have thought it was just so I could get auntie's money?"

"No," he labored out, "I wouldn't! I—you'll marry me—won't you, Ruthie?"

"Today!" she sobbed. Then, "Oh, Francis, forgive me! You are suffering—I must go for help!"

He smiled at her out of his drawn face. "Nothing hurts me now," he assured her. "My heart has come back to life, Ruthie!"

MASTERPIECES OF ART LOST

Glorious Buildings of Selinus Among Those of Which Hardly a Trace Is Left.

The crumbling ruins of Selinus lie scattered over a hill of western Sicily, where once they towered in titanic glory. The Greek colonies of the fifth century B. C. all had their artists and sculptors, and Selinus boasted seven masterpieces of Greek art erected to the honor of its favorite divinities.

The broken columns and walls of the most majestic temples of Sicily lie half buried in the dust of their crushed stones and ground into the earth as if hurled down by a mighty force. Hercules, to whom one of the temples was built, might have torn them in anger and flung the columns about and crushed the massive stone to powder with a blow of his fist. Looking out upon the chaotic ruin from the brow of the hill one can imagine the shattered columns shaking off the dust and gathering themselves together to stand erect again above the broad stairs. The walls seem to grow firm and square and graceful figures adorn the entrances. The picture fades quickly, and the fallen stones seem more desolate in contrast.

The buildings were not yet finished when Hannibal marched upon the proud city of Selinus and laid siege to its stronghold. Nine days the Greek colony held out, then Hannibal entered in triumph and massacre and destruction followed. The temples, craved only to fall later in more complete ruin than the Carthaginian army could have accomplished. An earthquake was the cause of the overthrow. The temples were then old, battered perhaps, but apparently good for some centuries, but the first trembling of the earth shook the very foundations and the temples fell.

Their Indifference.

"Them city people don't give a drat for anybody but themselves!" grumbled old Riley Rozzidew of Petunia. "They don't care enough about a person to even look at him in passing, let alone take any interest in who he is or where he comes from, or ask what he 'lows the weather will be tomorrow, or even stop and size him up and spit and say, 'Howdy! Pears like I've seen you some's', and in that way gradually work around to finding out what his name is—they actually don't want to know what his name is! And if they accidentally find it out they never take the trouble to inquire if he is any kin to So-and-So. They just nacherly don't give a hoot whether he is or not!"—Kansas City Star.

No Cause for Alarm.

"My dear," said an absent-minded professor on entering the dining room, "don't alarm yourself, but a slight palsy has manifested itself in my left foot. In spite of the fact that the thermometer stands at 60, my right foot feels more than normally warm, whereas the left is quite stiff and cold as ice." Upon the directions of the family doctor, who was summoned without delay, the professor was put to bed, when it was discovered that he had two socks on his right foot and none on his left!

Some Speed.

"I suppose you find the country girls awfully slow," slyly remarked a city girl who was visiting the farm, to the farmer's son. "Slow," he answered, "well, I guess not. There is Dolly South, she can milk her 15 cows before breakfast, by gum."

POULTRY FACTS

PROPER CARE OF INCUBATOR

Eggs Should Be Even-Shaped and Medium-Sized—Best Results Secured If Turned Daily.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Poultry raisers place great dependence upon the early-hatched chicken on account of its greater vitality, making a more vigorous growth, escaping the ravages of disease and insects, developing into early maturity, and the pullets from this hatch becoming profitable layers in the early winter season following. As a rule it is also true that eggs produced in the early part of the season will show a higher percentage of fertility than those produced later in the season. Care should be taken in saving eggs for the incubator. Select even-shape, medium-sized eggs, and keep them in a cool place. Better results will be secured if these eggs are turned carefully every day. Do not keep them over ten days or two weeks before putting them in the incubator.

Before setting up the incubator give it a thorough cleaning inside and out. Remove all the dust and scrub them with hot soapsuds. After they have dried brush the entire inside of the incubator and all the trays with wood alcohol. Clean out all the lamp flues to see that there are no cobwebs or carbon deposit; also, that these spaces have not been used for mice nests in the winter time. Clean the oil chamber of the lamp with hot soapsuds and remove the old wick from the burner and boil the burner in a soda solution for 15 or 20 minutes. Run the incubator for 48 hours to get the thermostat properly adjusted. After running the incubator five days, test the eggs and remove those that are infertile. Now is a good time also to clean the brooder. Give it a thorough coating with some good disinfectant, fix a clean, dry place for the young chicks when they are hatched, and, if possible, keep them removed from the main flock until they are half grown.

HIGHER PRICES FOR CAPONS

Fowls Grow Larger Than Cockerels, Are Easily Handled and Flesh Is of Better Quality.

The principal advantages of caponizing are that the capons grow larger than cockerels, make more economical growth, are more easily handled, sell for higher prices, and are more economical for the consumer on account of less waste in dressing and cooking. In addition the flesh is of better quality.

A statement from the Ohio College of Agriculture says: "Do not sell late-hatched cockerels as broilers unless of the Leghorn or other light-weight breeds. Caponize them and market after the holidays at weights of six to ten pounds each. Increase the supply of poultry meat and make a larger profit on the chickens you raise."

Overfeeding the young chicks is likely to be indulged in by many, especially the beginners.

Feed chicks lightly until they are eight or ten weeks of age. After that they can be forced.

Good healthy chicks can be raised by properly taking care of the hen and chicks or, of the brooder.

A Coated Tongue? What it Means

A bad breath, coated tongue, bad taste in the mouth, languor and debility, are usually signs that the liver is out of order. PROF. HEAR-METER says: "The liver is an organ secondary in importance only to the heart."

We can manufacture poisons within our own bodies which are as deadly as a snake's venom.

The liver acts as a guard over our well-being, sifting out the cinders and ashes from the general circulation.

A blockage in the intestines piles a heavy burden upon the liver. If the intestines are choked or clogged up, the circulation of the blood becomes poisoned and the system becomes loaded with toxic waste, and we suffer from headache, yellow-coated tongue, bad taste in mouth, nausea, or gas, acid dyspepsia, languor, debility, yellow skin or eyes. At such times one should take castor oil or a pleasant laxative. Such a one is made of May-apple, leaves of aloe and jalap, put into ready-to-use form by Doctor Pierce, nearly fifty years ago, and sold for 25 cents by all druggists as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Natural Question.

Esther is an inquisitive little girl. One day I took her for a walk and every time we met anyone she would ask who it was. We were just passing a large apartment when a man drove up in a car. Esther immediately asked: "Who is that, Aunt Catherine? Is that the doctor?" I told her that it was. Then she said: "Who is he going to fix?"—Chicago Tribune.

The Maliciously Inclined.

Malicious people are of two types—the actively malicious and the passive-malicious. Between the two there is a difference not of kind but merely of degree. The actively malicious are people who delight in belittling and injuring others, whether by petty gossip or outright slander. The passive-malicious find a strange pleasure in hearing of anything that is to the discredit of other people.

Washing Enamel.

All dirty marks on white enamel should be rubbed with a piece of flannel moistened with methylated spirit. Then wash the enamel with warm soapy water, dry and rub with a flannel sprinkled with whiting. Polishing with a dry duster completes the process. White enamel furniture treated in this way from time to time retains its brightness for a long period.

Your house will be uniformly warm; your cellar will be just right for the storage of fruits and vegetables. Your fuel bill will be less than with stoves that heat only a part of your house.

HERE ARE THE REASONS
The Original Patented Pipeless Furnace—the result of the study of competent engineers to solve the heating problem in the most satisfactory way. That they have succeeded is proved by the fact that the number of Caloric sold on an absolute guarantee of satisfaction is three times greater than any other pipeless furnace.

The cause of this pipeless furnace lies in the patented and exclusive principles that distinguish the Caloric from all others. It is not a pipe furnace provided with an extra casing, but a complete revolution in furnace building designed exclusively for pipeless heating.

Potato Biscuits Are Delicious

For a change from biscuit made of white flour try this recipe for potato biscuits. Less liquid is required and mashed potato is used instead of the liquid contained in the but.

2 cups sifted flour, 1 tablespoon salt, 1/2 cup lard, 1 cup mashed potato, 1 cup milk.

Mix together twice the flour, salt, and lard powder. Cut or rub into this the cold shortening in the same way, rub into this flour mixture the mashed potato. Finally add just enough cold liquid to make the mass cling together. Do not knead. Place on floured board. Roll until one-half inch thick and cut into rounds. Place these in lightly floured biscuit tins and bake 15 to 20 minutes in a moderately hot oven. Bake all potato breads more slowly than those made with flour alone.

Mike Kensing said it would be hard for a man that tall to get down to work.
